FOREWORD

For many years, Anders Wall Foundation located in Stockholm has been giving awards to young people who have significantly contributed to the development of the Swedish countryside through their entrepreneurial achievements.

In association with the European Commission, the Directorate General for the Environment, Brussels, the Royal Swedish Academy of Agriculture and Forestry and “Friends of the Countryside”, the Foundation has decided to introduce an award for individuals who have made a special contribution to the rural environment within the European Union. The achievement should preferably include the following elements – preserve and enhance the landscape and/or biodiversity, preserve the rural cultural heritage and contribute to sustainable local economic development.
